City hall critic David Sanders steps into the mayoral ring

'Somebody has to do it.'
Newest candidate believes in an overhaul

BERNICE PONTANILLA
bernice.pontanilla@metronews.ca

City hall's resident rabble-rouser has joined Winnipeg's mayoral race.

David Sanders, a former journalist, public servant, university professor and lawyer, said on Thursday he's entering the race simply because he has the best qualifications to "overhaul city hall."

"Somebody has to do it," Sanders told reporters after filing his papers at the city clerk's office Thursday morning.

"I've been looking very closely at city hall over the last year and a half. I'm not at all happy with how things have been managed here and I believe I have the experience and training in governance to do the job."

Sanders, a frequent delegate at council and committee meetings, took quick aim at his rivals, saying that aside from Coun. Paula Havixbeck, "I don't know where they've been the last year and a half but they haven't been here."

Sanders said it was the last city council meeting in July that prompted him to run.

"It was very clear that this council is unable to deal with these problems and I don't see the other candidates dealing with it successfully. I'll be able to deal with it starting Day 1," he added.

He also said he was first drawn to a city hall committee meeting during the debate over the second leg of the rapid transit corridor, now the Southwest Transitway, which he believes shouldn't "serve some developer's lands" by dog-legging out through the Parker fields, and should run along Pembina Highway.

David Sanders said he has the best qualifications to "overhaul city hall." BERNICE PONTANILLA/METRO

Sanders joins Havixbeck, Brian Bowman, Judy Wasylycia-Leis, Gord Steeves, Robert Falcon Ouellette, Mike Vogiatzakis and Michel Fillion on the mayoral ballot.

Wasylycia-Leis pledges 24-7 youth centre

Winnipeg needs a community centre that would be open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, said mayoral candidate Judy Wasylycia-Leis.

"I believe that's absolutely essential for the city of Winnipeg," Wasylycia-Leis said during a noon-hour press conference at city hall, adding that it was Aboriginal Youth Opportunities (AYO) that suggested this idea.

"It's not going to solve all of the issues overnight, but it is a very important start and I believe it will make a difference in terms of young people having creative opportunities all hours of night and day."

Wasylycia-Leis clarified that she's proposing to expand the hours and staffing at a current centre, preferably in the North End, not build a new one. She also said the costs would be found within city budgets.

The 24-7 community centre was one of five points Wasylycia-Leis put forward as part of her youth platform, which includes an advisory council made up of young people, a sustainability office and smarter urban planning.

Also part of this platform is the mayor's enterprise fund, a $250,000 loan fund that would help finance small businesses and festivals to a maximum of $10,000.

Wasylycia-Leis said the criteria for this fund has not yet been established, but the idea is to make the "community more vibrant and enhance our quality of life."

"I want to do everything I can to make sure that young people not only stay in this city, but are used for their incredible technological expertise, their spunk, their ingenuity, their creativity and their determination to make this a great city," she added.

Mayoral candidates aiming for bigger slice of PST for Winnipeg

Campaigning. Call for larger share of tax revenue a familiar one

SHANE GIBSON
shane.gibson@metronews.ca

Mayoral candidates Robert Falcon Ouellette, left, and Brian Bowman speak to media Thursday. SHANE GIBSON/METRO

Two candidates vying to become Winnipeg's next mayor both say they'll be able to secure the city a bigger chunk of the province's one per cent tax increase if elected in October.

Robert Falcon Ouellette and Brian Bowman held separate press conferences in front of the Legislative Building Thursday to make their pledges.

Ouellette told media he'd go after 70 per cent of the tax revenue, while Bowman said he'd go for the whole enchilada.

"I'd like as much — if not all — of the money that's collected here in Winnipeg," said Bowman. "Quite frankly, we need it if you look at the current state of our roads."

Both Bowman and Ouellette said they'd use the extra money for infrastructure.

Getting more of the tax money Winnipeggers hand over to the province has been something the city has been trying, without success, to do for years.

Bowman said his infrastructure plan released Wednesday, BuildWinnipeg, is tailor-made for working together with the province, and his time as Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce chair gives him the experience needed to negotiate with the premier.

Ouellette said he'd be able to convince the province to hand over a greater share of tax revenues because he isn't involved with a political party, and could use next year's provincial election as leverage.

More solutions

Ouellette's pledge was among a series of ideas he released Thursday to "correct the funding imbalances" at city hall.

- He said he'd cut wages for civil servants who make more than $80,000 a year, trim the wages of mayor and council and conduct a performance review of city government to find savings.
- His plans also include opening coffee shops at libraries to create revenue and encourage reading, and offering prizes to city staff who come up with money-saving ideas.

Change for the Better.
Event will also include mayoral candidates

The fourth annual CEO Sleepout on Sept. 18 will see at least four mayoral candidates, one council candidate, one trustee candidate and a former Bomber.

The event has community and business leaders sleeping on the street overnight to raise funds for Change for the Better, a program out of the Downtown Winnipeg BIZ that provides funding to employ the city's homeless in meaningful jobs.

Participants include Paula Havixbeck, Gord Steeves, Judy Wasylycia-Leis and Brian Bowman, along with Keith Bellamy, who is running in the Daniel McIntyre Ward, and Candace Maxymowich, who is running for school trustee in the Louis Riel School Division.

Other names include former Blue Bomber Donald Burrell, new University of Winnipeg president Dr. Annette Trimbee and numerous media personalities (including Metro Winnipeg editor Elisha Dacey). Since its inception, the Sleepout has raised nearly $500,000 for the program.

This year's CEO Sleepout takes place Sept. 18. METRO

Peace exhibition coming to CMHR

Canadian Museum for Human Rights. New national museum snagged a temporary exhibition before it officially opens Sept. 20

BERNICE PONTANILLA
bernice.pontanilla@metronews.ca

It's not open yet, but the Canadian Museum for Human Rights already has its first temporary exhibit.

Stuart Murray, the museum's president and CEO, along with Minister of Canadian Heritage Shelly Glover and Mark O'Neill of the Canadian War Museum in Ottawa, said Winnipeg's soon-to-open national museum will host Peace — The Exhibition in its Expressions temporary exhibit space this September.

"We welcome this opportunity to work with another national museum to help tell our country's rich and diverse human rights story from Day 1," said Murray, reminding people to mark their calendars for the museum's opening day of Sept. 20.

O'Neill, president and CEO of the Canadian History Museum, which operates the War Museum, said Winnipeg has always been a "cultural and historical gem" in Canada, and has no doubt the Museum for Human Rights will be a huge success.

"Some of the most significant violations of human rights occur in the tumult and terror of armed conflict," he said, adding a highlight of the Peace exhibition is how Canadians organized in support of nuclear disarmament.

"Actions taken in the name of peace can therefore be integral to the protection, restoration and advancement of human rights; there is a huge connection between the subject matter in both of our museums."

O'Neill said the full Peace — the Exhibition ran from May 2013 until this past January, and what Winnipeggers will see is a smaller, though no less important, version of the exhibit.

Blaze guts Windsor Community Centre

The smoke has cleared but staff at a St. Vital community centre worry a fire Wednesday night will leave area kids without daycare space once school starts next month.

Windsor Community Centre saw $500,000 damage in the blaze that apparently started in a basement electrical panel, according to a notice posted on the club's website.

Club president Jackie Hanna told Metro no one was at the club when the fire started around 9:15 p.m., but a daycare run in the basement was heavily damaged by smoke and water.

"We have a tiny tots program that starts in September, so hopefully we don't have to wait too long to get that going again," she said outside the club Thursday morning, adding she'd already gotten offers of help from nearby community centres and people in the neighbourhood. "We're a pretty close-knit community club, lots of support has already come in."

A burned-out electrical box could be seen outside the Windsor Community Centre Thursday morning after a fire at the club Wednesday night. SHANE GIBSON/METRO

The club has insurance and Hanna said she hopes repairs can get underway soon so programs, like the daycare, can get up and running again as quickly as possible. SHANE GIBSON/METRO

At four dump sites

There's still snow in 'Winterpeg'

It's the dog days of summer, but there's still snow to be found in the city nicknamed Winterpeg.

Jim Berezowsky, manager of street maintenance for Winnipeg, says there is still snow at the four dump sites used by the city.

He says the pile at the Kenaston site is still about 18 metres high. If it's not melting at the expected rate by the third week of August, the city will send in equipment to break the pile up so that it melts faster. CJOB/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Surrogacy targeted in drafted Thai legislation

Thailand. Government moves to ban surrogate pregnancies after child with Down syndrome was allegedly abandoned

Thailand pushed to ban commercial surrogacy Thursday as a case involving nine surrogate babies allegedly with the same Japanese father emerged only days after a furor over the alleged abandonment of a surrogate-born baby with Down syndrome.

The discovery of the nine babies being cared for by nannies in a Bangkok condominium followed accusations by a Thai surrogate that an Australian couple had left the boy with Down syndrome to be raised by her, while taking home his healthy twin sister. The scandal has focused global attention on the largely unregulated industry in Thailand, which authorities say became a go-to destination for commercial surrogacy after well-off countries tightened their own laws.

Officials said Thursday that the draft of a law banning surrogacy was submitted to the junta's head of legal and justice affairs and will be forwarded to the interim legislature for consideration next week.

"Now is good timing, as the steps (toward passing the law) have been completed," said Rarinthip Sirorat, of the Social Development and Human Security Ministry, "The purpose of this law is to give maximum benefits to the surrogate babies."

According to the draft, the new law would prohibit commercial surrogacy and those violating the law will face up to 10 years in prison and a fine of up to $6,200 US. Agencies, advertisers or recruiters of surrogate mothers will face up to five years in jail and a fine of up to $3,100 US.

Jury convicts U.S. man in teen's death

A jury convicted a U.S. man of second-degree murder and manslaughter on Thursday after he shot a drunk, unarmed black woman in the face on his porch last year after she pounded on his door. It rejected his claim that he was afraid for his life and had acted in self-defence.

Theodore Wafer shot Renisha McBride through a screen door on Nov. 2, hours after she crashed into a parked car near his house. No one knows why she ended up at the home, although prosecutors speculated that the 19-year-old may have been seeking help.

"She just wanted to go home," prosecutor Patrick Muscat said during closing arguments, holding the shotgun Wafer used to kill McBride. "She ended up in the morgue with bullets in her head and in her brain because the defendant picked up this shotgun, released this safety, raised it at her, pulled the trigger and blew her face off.''

Wafer, 55, who had been free on bond, was also convicted on a gun-related charge and was ordered to jail to await his sentence. He could face up to life in prison with the possibility of parole, but it is likely his sentence will be much shorter.

Beginning with Florida in 2005, at least 22 states have expanded the self-defence principle known as the "castle doctrine," the premise that a person has the right to defend his or her home against attack.

The laws make it easier for a person to shoot someone and avoid prosecution by saying they felt an imminent danger.

NATO pledges support for Kyiv in face of Russian belligerence

Battle for Donetsk.
Shells hit residential buildings, hospital in rebel stronghold, killing four people

NATO's chief defied mounting Russian belligerence Thursday with a pledge to provide assistance to Ukraine, which is battling to quash an insurgency being waged by pro-Russia rebels in the country's east.

The show of support from Anders Fogh Rasmussen comes as government troops increasingly focus their push to claw back rebel-held territory on the stronghold of Donetsk. Ukraine appears to be ratcheting up the urgency of its onslaught against the backdrop of an alleged escalation of Russian troop presence on the border.

That deployment has led many to speculate Russia may pursue an incursion under the guise of restoring stability to eastern Ukraine.

"I call on Russia to step back from the brink. Step back from the border. Do not use peacekeeping as an excuse for war-making," Rasmussen said during a visit to the Ukrainian capital, Kyiv.

While stopping short of committing to direct assistance in Ukraine's ongoing conflict, Rasmussen said that NATO would intensify its cooperation with Ukraine on defence planning and reform.

"In response to Russia's aggression, NATO is working even more closely with Ukraine to reform its armed forces and defence institutions," Rasmussen said.

In a sign of sagging morale among rebel forces, separatist authorities issued a desperate plea for assistance Thursday, complaining in a statement that a "critical situation has developed with the militia's food, uniform and ammunition supplies."

Mortar fire struck the Vishnevskiy Hospital on Thursday morning, killing one and wounding five others, Donetsk city council spokesman Maxim Rovensky said.

The shelling, which destroyed an array of equipment in the dentistry unit, also hit three nearby apartment buildings.

It followed a night of shelling in another neighbourhood as the fighting between the government and pro-Russia separatists is inching ever closer to the city centre.

Clashes in Kyiv

Hours before Rasmussen's arrival, clashes erupted in central Kyiv as authorities sought to clear away the remnants of a tent colony erected by demonstrators in the street uprising against pro-Russia president Viktor Yanukovych.

- In scenes reminiscent of that revolt, which climaxed with Yanukovych's ouster in February, demonstrators set alight tires in their faceoff against a volunteer battalion overseeing the cleanup operation.

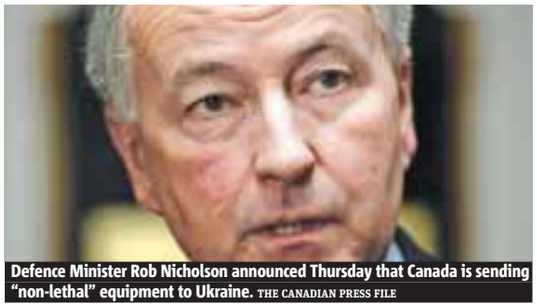
Canada sending helmets, vests, tents to Ukraine



Defence Minister Rob Nicholson announced Thursday that Canada is sending "non-lethal" equipment to Ukraine. THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Canada is sending non-lethal military equipment to Ukraine to help the country protect its eastern border against Russian aggression, Defence Minister Rob Nicholson said Thursday.

Nicholson made the announcement at a military base in Trenton, Ont., where a CC-130J Hercules plane loaded with "non-kinetic military equipment" was set to take off for the first in a series of military transport flights.

Quoted

"We will be able to save more lives, both troops and civilians, and even the separatists themselves."

Ukrainian Ambassador Vadym Prystaiko, saying his country was "very grateful" to Canada.

"(Russian President Vladimir) Putin's failure to end his support to armed rebel groups constitutes a real threat to international peace and security," Nicholson said. "Canada will not stand by in the face of this threat."

Helmets, ballistic eyewear, protective vests, first-aid kits, tents and sleeping bags are among the supplies being flown to Ukrainian troops. The "logistic equipment" will allow Ukrainian forces to better detect and track the movement of illicit goods and people, Nicholson said.

"Ukraine has asked for this and once again we are delivering," he said. "The Putin regime has not provided any indication they are prepared to respect Ukraine's territorial integrity or use their control over Russian-backed agents to end the violence in Ukraine."

ZMapp. 'Virtually no doses' of experimental drug available for Africans

Africans seeking a drug to help contain the Ebola virus will have to wait months before an experimental treatment used on two infected Americans is produced even in small amounts, officials said.

And there are no guarantees that the medication known as ZMapp would help curb the spread of the dreaded disease, which starts with a fever and body aches and sometimes progresses to serious bleeding. Supplies of the drug are limited. It has never been tested for safety or effectiveness in humans.

The health minister of Nigeria, one of the four countries where Ebola has broken out, told a news conference in his country that he had asked the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention about access to the drug. A CDC spokesman said Wednesday "there are virtually no doses available."

The lack of wider availability "shows simply that white patients and black patients do not have the same value in the eyes of world medicine," said Nouridine Sow, a sociology professor at the Universal Institute of Guinea.

But testing an unproven drug on a large population carries risks. Earlier this week, the CDC director emphasized that it's impossible to know whether ZMapp helped the sick American aid workers.

"Until we do a study, we don't know if it helps, if it hurts or if it doesn't make any difference," Tom Frieden told a health symposium in Kentucky.

Some health experts fear that debate over extremely limited supplies of the drug will distract from more tried-and-true practices. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The outbreak first emerged in Guinea and spread to neighbouring Sierra Leone and Liberia before reaching Nigeria. Almost 1,000 people have died since March.

Tribunal convicts two leaders of Cambodia's Khmer Rouge

Reign of terror. By 1979, which saw the end of the fanatical Khmer Rouge movement, nearly a quarter of the country's population was dead

They were leaders of Cambodia's infamous Khmer Rouge, the fanatical communist movement behind a 1970s reign of terror that transformed this entire Southeast Asian nation into a ruthless slave state — a place where cities were emptied of their inhabitants, religion and schools were banned, and anyone deemed a threat was executed.

When the nightmare ended in 1979, close to two million people were dead — a quarter of Cambodia's population at the time.

On Thursday, a UN-backed tribunal convicted two of the once all-powerful men of crimes against humanity in the first and possibly the last verdicts to be issued against the group's aging, top members.

Although survivors welcomed the decision to impose life sentences against Khieu Samphan, an 83-year-old former head of state, and Nuon Chea, the movement's 88-year-old chief ideologue, they also say justice has come far too late and is simply not adequate.

"Nothing can compare to the immense suffering they imposed, no sentence can be enough," said Youk Chhang, who heads the Documentation Center of Cambodia, which has collected more than a million documents related to the Khmer Rouge terror.

There was no visible reaction from either of the accused when the decisions were announced. Defence lawyers insisted the case was not over and vowed to appeal within 30 days.

Summarizing the verdict, chief judge Nil Nonn said the defendants were part of "a joint criminal enterprise" that launched "a widespread and systematic attack against the civilian population" after Khmer Rouge guerrillas seized Phnom Penh on April 17, 1975.

The case, which lasted about two years, focused on just one of many mass killing sites and the forced exodus of millions of people from Cambodia's cities and towns, where even hospitals were emptied of patients. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Obama authorizes airstrikes against militants in Iraq

Humanitarian aid dropped. The Yazidi people, members of an ancient religion in Iraq, are trapped by al-Qaida splinter group ISIL

The prospect of a humanitarian catastrophe could soon pull the United States one step deeper into Iraq, several years after its troops exited a long and painful war there.

President Barack Obama announced Thursday night he had authorized the U.S. military to launch targeted airstrikes if needed, to protect Americans from Islamic militants in northern Iraq.

He also said the U.S. military had carried out airdrops of humanitarian aid to Iraqi religious minorities trapped by the al-Qaida splinter group known as the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant.

The food and water supplies were delivered to the tens of thousands of Yazidis trapped on a mountain. The Yazidis, who follow an ancient religion with ties to Zoroastrianism, fled their homes after the ISIL group issued an ultimatum to convert to Islam, pay a religious fine, flee their homes or face death.

The Canadian government also condemned ISIL's behaviour. On Thursday, Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird said "despicable acts of violence" had displaced more than 200,000 people in the past week.

Obama, who has staked much of his legacy as president on ending the Iraq war, acknowledged that the prospect of a new round of U.S. military action would be a cause for concern among many Americans. He vowed anew not to put American combat troops back on the ground in Iraq and said there was no U.S. military solution to the crisis.

"As commander-in-chief, I will not allow the United States to be drawn into fighting another war in Iraq," Obama said.

Hamas threatens to resume rocket attacks if Gaza blockade not lifted

With a deadline looming hours away, Hamas on Thursday rejected Israeli demands to disarm and threatened to resume its rocket attacks if its own demand for the end of the blockade on Gaza was not met.

Voiced by a senior Hamas official at the group's first rally since a ceasefire in the Gaza war took effect on Tuesday, the hardline stance signals that indirect negotiations in Cairo over a permanent truce in Gaza are not making headway.

A text message from Hamas' military wing, the Izzedine al-Qassam Brigades, warned there would be no extension of the ceasefire if there was no agreement to permanently lift the blockade enforced by Israel and Egypt since the militant group overran Gaza in 2007.

Abu Obeida, the al-Qassam spokesman, appeared on the group's Al-Aqsa TV station and said Hamas was "ready to go to war again." Meanwhile, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu vowed a tough reaction if Hamas renews hostilities.

UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon weighed in again on the Hamas-Israel conflict, demanding an end to what he called the senseless cycle of suffering, telling the General Assembly that "the massive deaths and destruction in Gaza have shocked and shamed the world." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mass cult suicide-murder

Remains of Jonestown victims found

The cremated remains of nine victims of a 1978 mass cult suicide-murder in Jonestown, Guyana, have turned up in a former funeral home in Delaware, officials said Thursday.

On Nov. 18, 1978, gunmen from the Peoples Temple cult ambushed and killed U.S. Rep. Leo Ryan of California, three newsmen and a defector from the group. Cult leader Jim Jones orchestrated a ritual of mass murder and suicide at a nearby agricultural commune, ordering followers to drink cyanide-laced punch.

Most complied, although survivors described some people being shot, injected with poison, or forced to drink the deadly beverage when they tried to resist. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toddler finds gun in her diaper bag

Police say a toddler found a loaded handgun in her diaper bag at a daycare centre in northern Vermont.

Vermont State Police say the grandmother of the 17-month-old girl was dropping the toddler off at a daycare Thursday when she forgot the gun was in the bag.

The daycare owner told authorities the child found the gun in the bag, took it out and started walking around with it. A department worker told police the grandmother placed the handgun in the bag as she was leaving the house in a hurry. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The crew aboard a New Zealand fishing boat on Thursday hauled up a gruesome catch: a small plane with a body inside. Authorities suspect the plane is a 5.7-metre aerobatic biplane that was flown by missing Auckland pilot Daroish Kraidy.

The crew of the San Kawhai was trawling for fish when they brought up the wreckage at 10 a.m., said a spokeswoman for fishing company Sanford. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The craft beer boom

'Golden age'. Are microbreweries a fad that'll fizzle out or a business that'll replace beer-making behemoths?

Specialty brews

- Microbrewery: A small brewery making specialty beer in limited quantities

Source: www.merriam-webster.com

Tom Green's first sips of beer came courtesy of his dad, Richard — sort of.

"When you first start drinking," the Canadian comedian recalls in a phone interview with Metro, "you sneak whatever your dad has in the fridge."

Growing up in the nation's capital meant sneaking the nation's top brands, namely Molson's Export and Canadian, and Labatt's 50 and Blue.

When he started buying his own beer, the funny man considered himself a bit of a connoisseur. "I always went towards the craft — Rickard's Red and Alexander Keith's, good Canadian beers," says Green, who now lives full-time in L.A.

Back in the 1980s and '90s, choice was limited. New microbreweries started, then went flat fast. These days, the options are seemingly endless. There are saisons for patio season, pumpkin ales come fall, stouts for the holiday season and maple syrup concoctions in the spring.

We are currently in a "golden age" of craft beer, says Joel Manning, the brewmaster at Mill Street Brewery in Toronto, who has been working in the business since 1986.

Over the past four years, he says, an average of one new microbrewery pops up in Ontario each month. It's a similar story across the country, from Nova Scotia to British Columbia.

Hopped up on going local

Green teamed up with Beau's All Natural Brewing Co. in Vankleek Hill, Ont., a one-light town about an hour east of Ottawa, to make and sell The Tom Green Beer.

The beer bottles, bearing a beautiful illustration of the comedy legend with one eyebrow cocked, seem like an elaborate prank. But it's actually a serious award-winning milk stout, inspired by the milk gags Green used to pull on his Rogers cable access show before he hit the big time.

It's this attention to detail of what's on, as well as in, the bottles that has led the father-son team of Tim and Steve Beauchense to big-time success.

Breaking into the beer biz

Starting a microbrewery takes skill, and perhaps a bit of liquid courage. Granville Island Brewing Co. (GIB) in Vancouver has managed to stay in the beer biz for 30 years and counting. Here's some key ingredients for brewing up success.

- The lightbulb moment: In the early '80s, Mitch Taylor and Bill Harvey were inspired by the beer culture in Germany and Belgium and decided to try to bring it to British Columbia.
- Do your homework: The pair embarked on years of research, visiting microbreweries in the U.S. and Germany. They also got to know the main stakeholders.
- Have laser focus: The duo decided to focus on offering premium bottom fermented lager beers aged for several weeks in cold pressurized tanks, sold in draft in bars. They also made GIB available in bottles in local restaurants and stores.
- Build a cult following: In 1984 GIB was born, focusing on a German lager beer to gain a loyal local fan base.
- Stay true to your roots: While GIB is now owned by Molson Coors Brewing Co. it remains small and in B.C.

Beau's (a shortening of their surname) launched on Canada Day in 2006 and is now served in about 1,200 restaurants and sold in roughly 400 Liquor Control Board of Ontario (LCBO) stores.

"This is part of the local food movement," says Steve, explaining the phenomenal growth of his certified organic brewery. "People want to have authentic food and beer."

Drinking beer has always seemed as authentically Canadian as ice hockey and maple syrup. But cracking open a few cold ones actually peaked in the Great White North in 1975 at 106.50 litres of beer per capita. By 2010, consumption had dropped to 73.86 litres per capita, with many opting for wine instead, according to Statistics Canada.

But beer is still the No. 1 alcoholic beverage for Canucks, with many now choosing a microbrew. Sales of craft beer have increased by 1,800 per cent to approximately $50 million over the past 10 years, according to a spokesperson with the LCBO. In B.C., sales from breweries producing less than 15,000 hectolitres have more than doubled since 2009 to $67.9 million, reveals a spokesperson with B.C.'s liquor distribution branch.

It used to be men, like Green's dad, would buy "yellow, fizzy beer" by the case, for life, from the dominant Canadian brands. "Most people now have 10 to 12 beers on rotation," says Manning.

The big guys react (or not)

Molson has woken up to this sobering reality.

The iconic brand, started by John Molson in 1786 in Montreal, has heavily relied on nationalism to build loyalty. The average clean-cut Joe reciting the 'I am Canadian' rant in a plaid shirt in the early 2000s was the Platonic ideal of the Molson customer. Then, Canada's brewery merged with American behemoth Coors to form Molson Coors Brewing Co. in 2005.

While Canadian guys in 2014 are still partial to plaid, the young ones also tend to have a craft beer from a local brewery in their hands. This shift led Molson Coors to set up a craft beer division in 2011, after acquiring two top microbrewers — Ontario's Creemore Springs and B.C.'s Granville Island Brewing Co. Molson Coors had about 39 per cent of the national market and had net sales of $4.21 billion US worldwide in fiscal 2013, according to company reports.

Meanwhile, Labatt Breweries of Canada is sticking with its tried-and-true formula — largely staying away from the move to stronger flavoured beers. The brewer, founded by John Labatt in 1847 in London, Ont., eventually merged with Belgium-based brand Anheuser-Busch InBev in 2008. Canada's No. 1 brand is a hair ahead of Molson with about 40 per cent of the market, according to a company report.

It's a never-ending party?

Men and women of all ages are seeking out the next big thing. Beer has shed its stereotypical hoser image, immortalized by Bob and Doug McKenzie on 1980s comedy show SCTV.

CanLit goddess Margaret Atwood has a gruit ale (herb and berry-infused) with Beau's. Rock god Sam Roberts has a "session ale" with Toronto's Spearhead Brewing Company. Hipsters with nothing more than a home brew kit and a dream are giving it a go. The money is flowing, but so is the hubris.

The story of Mill Street starting as "three guys and a truck" in 2002 is intoxicating, but Manning warns some upstarts won't make it. Small outfits can have issues with quality control and some lack a basic understanding of the business side.

The Beauchesnes have been able to steadily build their brewery by mixing the father's business background, with the son's passion for the product. Having a national comedy treasure hock his eponymous beer on Jimmy Fallon's TV show last year didn't hurt, either.

Beau's is now available in New York state and there are plans to expand into Quebec.

Success is giving microbrewers a nice buzz, but is the trend close to tapped out?

"The popularity of craft beer is still growing," asserts Green. "People like original things."

Raise a glass of (craft) beer and cheers to that.

Canada aims to lure 'brilliant' immigrants

Jason Kenney. America's troubled immigration system is an opportunity to 'aggressively' court top talent to come here

Stalled immigration reforms in the United States are an opportunity for Canada to scoop up a wealth of young, "brilliant" foreign nationals and direct them into burgeoning tech-sector employment, the federal employment minister said Wednesday.

Minister Jason Kenney heartily endorsed his government's efforts to entice educated immigrants north of the 49th parallel as a direct counter to American policy obstacles to settling down there after earning highly prized degrees.

Kenney said the government has no concerns about aspiring to capitalize off the "super smart" graduates being produced in the U.S., where tens of thousands of young people from around the world attend prestigious schools like Stanford University. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Google gives 'https' sites a boost

Google is wielding the power of its dominant Internet search engine to push more websites into protecting the people using their services.

The move, announced late Wednesday, involves a change in Google's closely guarded formula for determining the rankings of its search results.

Websites that automatically encrypt their services will now be boosted higher in Google Inc.'s recommendation system. For now, encryption will remain a small factor in Google's ranking formula, but the Mountain View, Calif.-based company says it may put greater emphasis on the security measure in the future. It wants to make it tougher for government spies and computer hackers to grab the personal data of unwitting Web surfers.

Users can tell if a website is encrypted if its address begins with "https." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Argentina looks to sue the U.S.

Argentina is seeking to sue the United States at the world court over U.S. court rulings that last week forced the Latin American country into a default.

The International Court of Justice, commonly known as the world court, said in a statement Thursday it has received a request from Argentina to take on the case. There is a major hurdle though: The U.S. must agree to grant the international court jurisdiction if the suit is to proceed.

In a statement, the Hague, Netherlands-based court said Argentina's filing asserted that U.S. court rulings amount to "violations of Argentine sovereignty."

The dispute stems from a U.S. court's order for Argentina to pay in full a group of bondholders led by a New York hedge fund who refused to accept lower payments for restructured bonds following the country's default in 2001.

The U.S. court, in a decision upheld by the Supreme Court, ordered Argentina to pay the holdout investors about $1.5 billion US. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SORRY MRS. CARTER NO BANGER

THE METRO LIST
Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

Time once again for the list-to-end-all-lists: The Metro List. Here's what's causing the Earth to chase its tail this week:

1 Alison Redford, We Hardly Knew Ya. Memo to self: Double-check those expenses. It's hard to believe, but Alison Redford, who had it all, still wanted more, and even created fake fellow airline travellers to help herself to a few extra taxpayer dollars, according to the provincial attorney general. So now she's the ex-premier of Alberta, and this week, out of politics altogether. It's still the same old story — greed kills.

2 The Ballad of Jay-Z and Beyoncé. Looks as if pop music's power couple is running out of gas. Even though they've been married for six years, the usual reliable sources report that on their current tour they've been staying in different hotels, and the tour entourage includes four lawyers, two each. It doesn't take four lawyers to make sure there is the right number of M&Ms in the backstage bowl. On their latest stop in San Francisco, they made an effort to play nice and stay in the same hotel at least, but no word yet on whether the release of diss track Sorry Mrs. Carter by model/rapper Olivia McFallar changes anything. McFallar, a.k.a. Yes Liv Can, denies the rumour that she is Jay-Z's mistress in the rather confusing tune, though she claims it wasn't from Hov's lack of effort. Stay tuned.

3 Suck It Up, Comrade. Russian President Vladimir Putin, annoyed by sanctions from the West, has banned food imports from Canada, the U.S., the European Union, Australia, Norway, etc. Meat? Nyet! Fish? Nyet! Fruit and veg? Nyet. Dairy products? Also Nyet. Putin must be counting on nostalgia for the good old days when the average Russian stood in line all day for turnips and vodka. Hope they've got a lot of vodka.

4 Not So Long Ago, Not So Far Away. The Star Wars franchise has officially been fully Disneyfied. Disney announced this week that both its theme parks, California's Disneyland and Florida's Disney World, will get major Star Wars additions. No details yet, but does that mean the future will no longer be represented by Tomorrowland and Epcot Center, both permanently frozen in time (1959, to be precise)? Who's your daddy, Luke?

5 Products of a Deranged Mind, Number 37. Hey, workout fans, a U.K. company has developed a device that allows you to track the number of calories you burn during sex, plus the number of, um, thrusts per minute. It's called SexFit and it fits around your boy bit, vibrating while it collects data. Then you can download the app and share your stats with other ridiculous narcissists. It's a prototype at the moment, and with any luck, it will remain so forever. Going for the burn just got weird.

Confiscated stuffed animals are on display during a news conference in Carson, Calif., Wednesday. U.S. Customs and Border Protection officers seized nearly $9,000 worth of stuffed-and-mounted animals.
NICK UT/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Maybe they shouldn't have marked the would-be contraband 'animal heads'?

Federal customs officials at the Port of Los Angeles have seized about $9,000 worth of mounted and stuffed wildlife "hunting trophies" that lacked proper export permits.

The collection was on display Wednesday during a news conference at a Carson warehouse. The items, packed in seven boxes as part of a consolidated shipment declared to be household goods, were confiscated July 23. "Animal heads" was written on one of the boxes.

Investigators said at least some of the items were purchased from a liquidator in Texas by a 44-year-old man from the Philippines who was in the United States for the first time with his wife and two children on a family vacation.

Officials said the man is co-operating and is not believed to have been aware of the needed permits. The items will probably be donated to zoos, universities or other schools for educational uses, officials said.

THE DAILY BREEZE

The goods

- The collection included a bear skull and full-body mounts of a bobcat, a lynx with a bird and a baboon, all four of which are protected species.
- Other specimens included deer, kudu and impala antlers and horns, shoulder mounts of a goat and a zebra, a wildebeest, an African antelope, African gazelle, two smallmouth bass and an alligator.

Rummu is an abandoned Soviet-era prison that also served as a forced labour mine near Tallinn, Estonia. In a rare example of poor Soviet planning, it turns out all of that mandatory mining left the quarry prone to flooding from underground waters. And that's exactly what happened, transforming what was once a hellish crime against nature into one of the most unusual and beautiful beach bum meccas we've ever seen. It's probably totally spooky when the sun goes down, though. (XL-Studios/YouTube)

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Helen Mirren plays an icy French chef in The Hundred-Foot Journey. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

The Hundred-Foot Journey is a feel-good movie about an Indian family who moves to a small town in France to open a restaurant. Across the street is a Michelin-starred French eatery run with an iron fist by Madame Mallory (Helen Mirren). Cultures and personalities clash, but soon Hassan Kadam's (Manish Dayal) talent leads him on a journey. First he crosses the hundred feet between the restaurant his father (Om Puri) owns to Madame Mallory's kitchen, then to Paris and ultimately to his real passion.

The Hundred-Foot Journey. The story runs a little bland at times, but Indian actor Om Puri adds some fine flavour

Richard: Mark, the last time director Lasse Hallström went all Food Network on us, the result was the 2000 bonbon Chocolat, a comic story with a bittersweet edge. He's revisiting similar ground here, mixing gastroporn, good old-fashioned romance and cross-cultural farce.

Despite its predictability, The Hundred-Foot Journey's collection of characters keeps things lively and amusing and the food looks so good you'll wish the movie was in Smell-O-Vision.

I thought it was an enjoyable film about passion; the passion for food, passion for culture but most of all, passion for life. What did you think?

Mark: Richard, I wouldn't use the word passion to describe this movie. It was full of warmth, and it glowed from the sun-dappled shots of the French countryside to the sun-dappled shots of the delicious food to the sun-dappled shots of Helen Mirren's profile contemplating Septuagenarian sex.

But passion? If this movie about food were a food, it would be a nice custard, served at room temperature.

RC: Perhaps there wasn't passion of the Gordon Ramsay style, but I thought the characters, particularly the young leads, brought enthusiasm not only to their romance but to their rivalry as well.

As Marguerite, Charlotte Le Bon moves beyond simply playing the romantic counterpart and puts herself and her dream of being a chef first. I liked that she was spunkier than you often see in a movie like this. Ditto Mirren.

As Madame comes to respect and then like her new neighbours, her ice queen demeanour slowly melts, allowing the actress to subtly reveal layers of character.

MB: None of them impressed me Richard, not even Mirren.

The one actor that did blow me away was the great Indian actor Om Puri, whose name even sounds like a fine dish, served with a side of raita.

I didn't find much that surprised me in the script either, although I wasn't expecting the young Indian chef to cross the road and work at Mirren's classical French restaurant.

Whether or not you see him as a contemptible sellout or not probably depends on your attitude towards fusion cuisine.

RC: Tone-wise this movie reminded me of The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel.

It may not be the most original movie to hit screens this summer, but I liked the characters and left the theatre hungry for more.

MB: I just left the theatre hungry. The vindaloo has the best part.

Good for your heart, brain, mood, joints, skin and hair and more!

Batman V Superman film release bumped up

Superhero showdown.
Warner shifts date to avoid competing with Captain America

To avoid going head to head with Captain America 3 in theaters, Warner Bros has decided to shift the release of Batman V Superman: Dawn of Justice forward by more than a month.

Initially, both films were set to hit theatres on May 6, 2016, meaning that the superheroes would have given each other some serious competition at the box office. Since Disney refused to change the date of its next Captain America movie, Warner Bros revised the production timeline on its DC feature and announced the new release date of March 25, 2016.

Now rather than clashing directly with a rival superhero, Batman and Superman will be in theatres at the same time as Paramount's Beverly Hills Cop 4 with Eddie Murphy, which is due for release on the same day.

If Warner Bros wants to give the best chance possible to Batman V Superman, it's partly because of the high expectations surrounding its superhero franchises in general. The studio recently announced the provisional release dates of 10 new DC Comics movies set to debut between 2016 and 2020.

Aubrey Plaza is all about the brains

Life After Beth. Though she may have an appetite for them in this zom-com, actress is also in possession of a pretty sharp brain

IN FOCUS
Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

Aubrey Plaza, star of the new zombie rom-com Life After Beth, is a liar.

When asked if it is possible to overthink her approach to a character she says, "I'm not very smart to begin with, so I can't overthink anything. If I'm thinking about something, that's a big deal for me."

Liar, liar, pants on fire.

Actually, the New York University's Tisch School of the Arts graduate, best known as April Ludgate on Parks and Recreation, is a secret smarty-pants with a well thought-out career path.

"Most scripts I read feel wrong to me just because they're not good," she says. "I tend to try and do things that are scary to me because otherwise I'll just get offered the same thing over and over again, and who wants to see that ... except for everyone."

AUGMENTED REALITY

→ Scan this photo with your Metro News app for a clip of Zack (Dane DeHaan) reacting to news his girlfriend Beth is dead!

→ See the full instructions on Metro's Voices page.

Life After Beth offered up something different and a little scary. Plaza says the story of Zack (Dane DeHaan) and his recently deceased girlfriend Beth (Plaza) who refuses to stay dead is a metaphor "for a breakup and how when you break up with someone, it's like they die. Then you try to get back together with them and you only remember the good things. Or you turn that person into a monster. There's all kinds of ways you can look at the movie."

Life After Beth opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

The 30-year-old actress says, "I like make-believe which is why I like movies and like making them and making people believe that I am good at that," adding that she always had "grand delusions" of a career in film.

"I had really weird taste when I was little," she says. "I was really into Judy Garland and Bette Midler. I had a sophisticated gay man's taste at an early age."

Plaza was also obsessed with Saturday Night Live, particularly with the female cast members like Molly Shannon, Tina Fey and her current Parks and Rec co-star Amy Poehler, a person she now calls a "close friend" and the nicest and funniest person in the room.

"She is like a glowing orb of light."

Her take on Poehler is believable, but when asked about her movie's message, she lies again.

"I want people to see zombies in a whole new light and think before they shoot them in the brains," she says. "If the zombie apocalypse happens I want the world to remember, 'These were humans at one point...' No, I think they should just shoot them. Immediately."

Neeson action flick pushed forward

Initially slated for a February release, the action thriller Run All Night is now due in North American theatres on April 17, 2015, Warner Bros has announced. After the Taken films and the more recent Non-Stop, Liam Neeson will reprise his action role in Run All Night, in which he plays a hit man who defies his mobster bosses in order to save those close to him. Katie Holmes finds it hard to play it flat

The Giver. Actress had difficulty going against the urge to emote in sci-fi tale about a utopia with no pain

Katie Holmes is the first to admit that she found the idea of playing one of the citizens in the sci-fi allegory The Giver a bit of a head-scratcher as far as acting exercises go.

"It was a really challenging role to play because it's this utopian society, this alternate reality. There's no emotion, there's no pain, there's a great deal of security and safety, but to play that as an actor is interesting because we like to emote," she says.

"They don't have any emotions, but I think that they're human after all, so I always believed that the characters were capable of love."

Of course, the pedigree of the project — based on Lois Lowry's award-winning, best-selling young adult novel — didn't hurt. "I heard about the project and I heard it was (director) Phil Noyce and Jeff Bridges and Meryl Streep," she says. "I was not familiar with the book, so I read the book along with the script and I thought it was a really powerful story."

While it's been 16 years since Holmes shot to fame barely out of her teens on Dawson's Creek, the actress has no regrets about finding success so early. "I feel really lucky for all the opportunities that I've had. I think it's great to start young because you learn the business quickly. It's exciting," she says. And she still keeps up with her co-stars, she insists. "I just saw Michelle (Williams) in Cabaret. She's amazing in it," Holmes says of her Dawson's Creek co-star's current Broadway gig.

Speaking of Broadway, professionally Holmes has been a bit quiet since Batman Begins nine years ago — popping up in an odd mix of projects every year or two like Don't Be Afraid of the Dark, The Kennedys television miniseries and Adam Sandler's dubious Jack and Jill — but fans closer to New York City know that she's been keeping plenty busy with stage work, recently playing on Broadway in All My Sons and Dead Accounts. And if Holmes has her way, that won't be the end of it.

"It's just different. It's a different experience, but they're both very satisfying professionally," she says, comparing theatre and film work."

The Giver opens next Friday.

NED EHRBAR/MWN

A thespian's wish

What else would Holmes like to do in theatre? "I'd like to do The Cherry Orchard. I'd like to do Dollhouse," she says.

Surgeon saves lives the low-tech way

The Knick. Hospital drama set in 1900 stars Clive Owen as brilliant but drug-addicted doc

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Clive Owen, centre, and Eric Johnson, star in The Knick, a 1900s hospital drama premiering Aug. 8 on HBO Canada. CINEMAX

Clive Owen may have started out on television, but he hasn't appeared on a series since 1996's Sharman — save for a hilarious self-parodying cameo on Extras for Ricky Gervais.

Still, Owen respects his TV roots, including his first breakout role on the British series Chancer in 1990.

"I did a lot of television when I was young, and that was the first big series," he says. "That series got me going, really, and sort of launched me, and I had a great time with it.

"I did two seasons of that and, at that particular time in my life and my career, I decided I wanted to do other things and keep things as sort of mixed and varied as I could. I went off and did other things — theatre, smaller films."

Small films like Croupier, Gosford Park and Children of Men. Certainly nothing to sneeze at.

Now, almost 25 years later, Owen is happily taking to the small screen with The Knick (premiering Fri., Aug. 8 at 11 p.m. ET/MT on HBO Canada), playing Dr. John Thackery, lead surgeon in New York's Knickerbocker Hospital in the early 20th century.

What brought him back? Well, being directed by Steven Soderbergh didn't hurt.

"Steven called me up when he had the first script, and he told me he was thinking about a 10-part television series. I've known Steven sort of, you know, for a number of years, and I'm a huge fan of his," Owen explains. "But the reality is, as an actor, when you come across a piece of material that sets you alight and reminds you of why you do what you do, that's the be-all and end-all. The fact that it's 20 hours of television, all it means to me is that I'm lucky enough to be involved in something that I'm very passionate about."

Dr. John Thackery

"He's a very complex, difficult character. He's kind of redeemed by the fact that he's brilliant and he's passionate."

Clive Owen, The Knick
Describing his role as Dr. John Thackery

Owen admits he didn't always feel that way, given the time commitment — and that was even before the 10-episode series became a 20-episode series.

"To be honest with you, before I started reading the script, I wasn't sure I wanted to commit to 10 hours of television playing the same part," he says. "I was shooting something else, sitting in a trailer. I started to read the script to get a taste of what it might be like and, 40 minutes later, there was no way I was not going to do it, because it was such a beautifully written script and such an amazingly original part. I was never not going to do it."

Part of that appeal is the role of Thackery, an ambitious, pioneering surgeon with a few substance abuse issues bringing him down.

"He's not a sort of leading character that's going to take people by the hand and lead them gently through a medical drama set in 1900," Owen says.

"He's a very complex, difficult character. He's kind of redeemed by the fact that he's brilliant and he's passionate. He's about trying to forward the whole world of medicine and trying to save people's lives and, ultimately, you know, providing a huge service to people, generally. But he's a very difficult, complicated, functioning addict at the same time.

"It's kind of challenging, and I personally, as an actor, love the challenge of taking that on."

Scream. Popular killer gets a fresh set of victims in new series on MTV

MTV has just revealed the cast of Scream, its series pilot based on Wes Craven's famous horror movie.

The TV adaptation has been in development for more than two years.

Sidney Prescott, the character pursued by the killer in the white mask in the popular movies, released between 1996 and 2011, is passing the torch to five new potential victims.

Willa Fitzgerald will lead the cast in the role of Emma, a popular girl with a hidden shy intellectual side.

Amy Forsyth will play her former best friend, Audrey, who is the daughter of a Lutheran priest and dreams of making movies.

John Karna will play Noah, Audrey's geeky friend, while Carlson Young will play the leader of the high school's popular crowd. Amadeux Serafini will play a somewhat weird new kid.

Developed by Jill Blotevogel and written by Jay Beattie and Dan Dworkin (Criminal Minds), the show's pilot will be directed by Jamie Travis.

The MTV series under development is based on the popular series of horror movies. CONTRIBUTED

Headlined by Neve Campbell, David Arquette and Courteney Cox, the original Scream franchise grossed more than $600 million US at the worldwide box office. AFP

Prince William's got a brand new day job

Prince William is taking a new job: Air ambulance pilot.

Britain's royal officials announced yesterday that starting in September, the royal will train for about five months as a helicopter pilot with East Anglian Air Ambulance. If successful, he will join the charity group, based in Cambridge, next spring.

The stint will be William's main job, although he will continue to take on royal duties and engagements. His duties will include flying day and night shifts, and working with medics at emergencies ranging from road accidents to heart attacks.

"The pilot is part of the team and he will be looking after patients with conditions that would be horrifying for many, and some pilots may not like that very much," says Alastair Wilson, the charity's medical director. "Compared to his role as a search-and-rescue pilot, he may be dealing with more injury patients than he is used to, but I'm sure he will adapt very well to that."

The job will build on William's experience as a Royal Air Force search-and-rescue pilot, a position he qualified for in 2012 after serving other military duties. He left that job last September, shortly after his and wife Kate's first son, Prince George, was born.

William will be paid a salary for the new job, which he will donate in full to charity. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vampire star's charity sucks at helping people

Vampire Diaries star Ian Somerhalder may not be as charitable as he comes off, if recently uncovered tax documents for his conservation charity are any indication.

The Ian Somerhalder Foundation works to "promote the conservation of natural resources" and "provide relief to the poor, distressed or underprivileged."

But in 2012, the foundation took in $365,000 in donations while paying out only one grant — for $550 — to the Best Friends Animal Society and Wildlife Rehab, according to TMZ. So how were the rest of the donations used? Nearly $21,000 went to office expenses and rent, travel accounted for $20,000 and almost $153,000 was lumped together under "other expenses." Records for 2013 show an income of $504,000 with no grants at all paid out.

Heigl blames motherhood, not writers, for Grey's goodbye

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Katherine Heigl is looking to rewrite history in her ongoing image rehabilitation efforts while promoting her new TV series, State of Affairs.

The former Grey's Anatomy star now insists she left the popular medical drama not because of dissatisfaction with the writing, but because she didn't like being a working mom.

"I felt like my priorities were messed up. I was putting so much time and energy into just my work, but I was raised (to believe) that family comes first," Heigl tells Us Weekly.

"I would come home angry and frustrated that I'd missed everything with my kid that day. I didn't get to wake her up from her nap or do bath time or bedtime. I'd have to sneak into her room and kiss her when she was sleeping, hoping not to wake her up."

All perfectly valid reasons, granted.

But she seems not to realize that all the stuff she used to say — like, "I did not feel that I was given the material this season to warrant an Emmy nomination" — is actually written down somewhere.

Clooney to wed Alamuddin in Italy, banns confirm

The wedding is on, apparently, as George Clooney and Amal Alamuddin have posted the legally required wedding banns at London's Chelsea Town Hall, indicating they're planning to get hitched imminently, according to People magazine.

A spokesman at the register office at London's Chelsea Old Town Hall confirmed Thursday that the couple posted a legal document for a British national who is marrying abroad. A photo of the notice published by the Daily Mirror showed the pair's names, ages and occupations. It also showed they plan a wedding in Italy. The document was taken down after being on display for the requisite 21 days.

It is the second marriage for Clooney, 53, and the first for Alamuddin, 36. WITH FILES FROM THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lohan ignores sober pals while partying in Europe

Lindsay Lohan's sober pals are worried about her, which would seem to be standard operating procedure for Lindsay Lohan's sober pals.

This time, it's because she is ignoring their text messages and phone calls while she parties across Europe, according to Radar Online.

"Lindsay has abandoned her friends and her sober community. She stopped responding to our texts and calls and is basically ignoring everyone now. She's getting the texts because they show up as read. She's just not answering," a source complains. "Some of these people have been friends with her for more than a decade. There is nothing anyone can do until she answers."

Though it makes as diverse a selection of wines as any part of Italy, the north-eastern region of Veneto is best known for its reds, with the viticultural area of Valpolicella arguably as famous as Tuscany's Chianti in the minds of wine lovers.

Typically bright and refreshing, the table wines from Valpolicella are easy-drinking and grill-friendly.

Where things get interesting is when winemakers dry grapes (a process called appassimento).

The output of the raisin-like fruit creates richly textured wines called amarone (drier), recioto (sweeter) and ripasso (a wine fermented with the grape mass left over from the production of the other two).

Masi Agricola pioneered many of the techniques used in making wines from dried red grapes and is trying them out on white wines. Its 2012 Masianco Pinot Grigio & Verduzzo ($15.00 - $18.99) blends freshly picked grapes with some that see a light drying. The result balances ripe aromatics with citrusy flavours and makes a perfect match with grilled white meats and fresh fish. PRICES REFLECT RANGE ACROSS COUNTRY. Cherry Tomato Tart.

Instead of standing in a hot kitchen, spend time with your guests

RICARDO COOKS

Ricardo Magazine

I love to impress my guests, and I also love to spend time with them. Because I don't want to waste hours in the kitchen instead of enjoying their company, I assemble this recipe ahead of time.

You can replace the feta cheese with a ball of fresh mozzarella, sliced. In this case, you may need to season with a bit more salt. You can also substitute the rectangular tart pan for a pie plate that's 1 inch (2.5 cm) deep and 9 inches (23 cm) in diameter.

Pastry

1. In a food processor, pulse the flour and the butter until the butter is the size of small peas. Add the milk and pulse until a ball begins to form. Remove the dough from the processor and shape into a square with your hands.

2. On floured work surface, roll out the dough into a 16 x 6-inch (40 x 15 cm) rectangle. Line in a 14 x 4-inch (35 x 10 cm) rectangular tart pan. Place in freezer for 15 minutes.

3. With the rack in the lowest position, preheat the oven to 400 F (200 C).

Filling

1. In a bowl, combine the milk and cornstarch with a whisk. Whisk in the eggs and herbs. Lightly season with salt and pepper. Pour into the crust. Sprinkle with the cheese. Carefully top with the tomato clusters. Bake for about 25 minutes or until the filling is firm and lightly browned.

2. Let cool for 10 minutes. Remove the tomato stems before serving. FOLLOW RICARDO ON SOCIAL MEDIA AND ON RICARDOCUISINE.COM OR SUBSCRIBE TO HIS MAGAZINE'S UP-COMING ENGLISH EDITION LAUNCHING THIS SEPTEMBER!

Harper hits it over the fence for Nats' win

Bryce Harper swung at the 91 mph pitch in the bottom of the 13th inning and could tell right away the ball would end up over the fence.

"I knew it was gone. I mean, I felt it," the 2012 NL rookie of the year said. "I haven't felt like that in a while. I haven't got extension on a ball in a pretty long time."

Harper's fourth homer of an injury-interrupted, trying season was a game-ending, two-run shot to the opposite field off righty reliever Carlos Torres, lifting Washington past the New York Mets 5-3 Thursday and giving the Nationals a season-high 4-1/2-game lead in the NL East.

High-scoring Durant is latest to leave Team USA

Kevin Durant withdrew Thursday from the U.S. national team, the biggest loss yet for a weakening American squad that will go to Spain without the leading scorer on its last two gold medal winners.

The NBA's MVP took part in the Americans' training camp in Las Vegas last week, but then informed team officials that he wasn't going to continue.

A few days ago, Team USA also lost Paul George and previously Kevin Love, Blake Griffin, LaMarcus Aldridge, and Kawhi Leonard.

Riders again. Maze intercepts Willy, runs 28 yards in Winnipeg's 11th loss in 13 games against Saskatchewan

Wednesday night

Roughriders	Bombers
23	17

Saskatchewan defensive back Terrell Maze intercepted Drew Willy and ran 28 yards for a touchdown to help the Roughriders defeat the Winnipeg Blue Bombers 23-17 on Thursday night.

Saskatchewan (4-2) tried a two-point passing play following Maze's TD at 12:40, but Darian Durant's pass was incomplete and the score stayed 22-17.

The turnover came after the Bombers (5-2) had gained the upper hand when receiver Rory Kohlert got behind a defender and hauled in a 12-yard pass from Willy in the end zone to go ahead 17-16 with 5:25 left.

His two-point convert attempt was unsuccessful in front of Winnipeg's first sellout crowd of the season of 33,234 loud fans at Investors Group Field.

On Winnipeg's next series after the Maze TD, Willy was intercepted by defensive back Mark Legree, who also intercepted him in the first quarter.

Riders kicker Chris Milo attempted a 32-yard field goal with 30 seconds left in the game, but missed and added a single for the final 23-17 score.

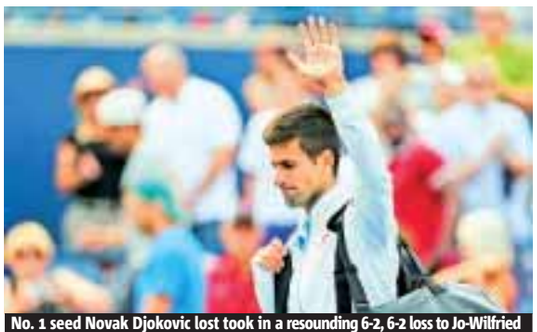
Willy completed 23 of 39 pass attempts for 303 yards, three interceptions and one TD.

Durant was 13-of-21 for 115 yards and no interceptions and no TDs.

Saskatchewan had won 10 of the past 12 games between the clubs heading into the match.

The teams play each other two more times this season, next in the Labour Day Classic in Regina and a week later in Winnipeg for the Banjo Bowl. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Raonic rolls while giants fall in Toronto



No. 1 seed Novak Djokovic lost took in a resounding 6-2, 6-2 loss to Jo-Wilfried Tsonga on Thursday in Toronto. RONALD MARTINEZ/GETTY IMAGES

Canada's Milos Raonic advanced to the quarter-finals at the Rogers Cup on Thursday with a 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 victory over Julien Benneteau of France.

The sixth seed from Thornhill, Ont., used his impressive power game to his advantage on a comfortable, breezy evening at Rexall Centre in Toronto. Raonic showed off his booming serve to take the first game at love and his punishing ground strokes gave Benneteau trouble throughout the match.

Raonic will next face Spain's Feliciano Lopez, who surprised fourth-seeded Tomas Berdych of the Czech Republic on a day of upsets at the $3.78-million US Masters 1000 series tournament.

Three of the top four seeds were eliminated in third-round action. Jo-Wilfried Tsonga of France knocked out top-seeded Novak Djokovic of Serbia 6-2, 6-2 while South Africa's Kevin Anderson upset third-seeded Stan Wawrinka of Switzerland 7-6 (8), 7-5.

"Just nothing was going," Djokovic said. "No baseline, no serve, no return. So (it was) just generally (a) very bad day, very poor performance. (I) couldn't do much."

A visibly elated Tsonga did some shadow boxing and jumped up and down before waving to the receptive crowd.

"It's not every day you get the rewards of what you're doing every day during the year," he said.

Tsonga will play No. 8 Andy Murray of Britain in the quarter-finals. Murray advanced when Richard Gasquet of France withdrew due to an abdominal strain. THE CANADIAN PRESS

MLB. Toronto waste Happ's gem in loss to Orioles as AL East deficit grows

J.A. Happ had some of his best stuff against the Baltimore Orioles. Unfortunately for the Toronto Blue Jays, the lineup couldn't say the same.

Happ struck out a career-high 12 batters in eight stellar innings of work, but the Blue Jays fell five games back of the American League East-leading Orioles with a 2-1 loss Thursday night at Rogers Centre.

Thursday night

Orioles	Blue Jays

Toronto managed just five hits and couldn't do much against starter Miguel Gonzalez (6-6) or the Baltimore bullpen. The Blue Jays stranded six on base in losing their second of this three-game series.

Despite allowing a few doubles and a two-run home run to Orioles catcher Caleb Joseph, Happ (8-6) was in command. He limited the damage in giving up five hits and had just one walk to go along with the pile of strikeouts.

Earlier in the day when discussing Brett Lawrie's strained oblique that landed him on the 15-day disabled list, general manager Alex Anthopoulos said he believed the Blue Jays could be in every game as long as they pitched well. Happ certainly did that, but it wasn't enough.

Happ did get into trouble early but was up to his old tricks in getting out of jams.

One reason for the Blue Jays' anemic offensive showing could've been the departure of No. 2 hitter Melky Cabrera, who took a 91-m.p.h. fastball to the right elbow in the first inning. Cabrera was removed from the game in the third and is considered day-to-day after X-rays came back negative.

Nolan Reimond, who replaced Cabrera as the designated hitter, went 0 for 3.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Optimistic Anthopoulos

"I still think there's enough depth in this lineup, there's enough depth in the offence that we can sustain one guy being down. Hopefully there's no setbacks at all for (Adam) Lind and (Edwin) Encarnacion. If we end up getting two of those three, I still think those are two big bats." Blue Jays general manager Alex Anthopoulos saying he thinks his team can get by with limited offence in the short term. After just coming back from a six-week absence with a broken finger, the Jays announced Thursday that Brett Lawrie will be out until at least September with a torn oblique. The Jays are also waiting for Adam Lind and Edwin Encarnacion to return from injuries.

BMO Field is where dreams come true

Women's U20 World Cup. Nichelle Prince says 'it's crazy' to play where she once sat as just another young fan

Nichelle Prince has a photo of herself with Kara Lang at a game several years ago at BMO Field. Prince figures she was 11 at the time. Lang was starring for Canada's women's soccer team.

"It's crazy, looking back at that picture," Prince said. "And now I'm coming out into the same stadium, and I'm taking pictures with other girls. It's crazy."

It was a surreal moment when Prince, 19, and her Canadian teammates walked through the tunnel and onto the field at the National Soccer Stadium — or BMO Field — on Tuesday, in Canada's opening game of the FIFA U20 Women's World Cup, a 1-0 loss to Ghana.

It was the same tournament back in 2002 that launched the international careers of the likes of Lang and Christine Sinclair, who would go on to become household names in Canada. Lang scored three goals in six games as a 15-year-old, while Sinclair would win both the golden ball as MVP and the golden boot as top goalscorer. Canada made it all the way to the final, where it lost to the U.S. in front of a crowd of 37,194 in Edmonton's Commonwealth Stadium.

While this year's team would love to repeat the success of 2002, the Canadians are realistic.

"We knew that getting to a quarter-final, winning a quarter-final, was a realistic objective for us, and anything more would be too ambitious based on how the program has done over the last 12 years," said coach Andrew Olivieri. "Winning a quarter-final is still our objective, and then after that, we'll enjoy (each game) and gain from the experience."

Canada faces Finland on Friday in Toronto and then North Korea on Tuesday in Montreal, and need to win both to avoid an early exit. North Korea edged Finland 2-1 in the other Group A game on Tuesday. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Birdie not enough for Tiger

Tiger Woods made only one birdie on Thursday at Valhalla on his way to a 3-over 74, putting him close to missing the cut in the PGA Championship. Scan the image with your Metro News app for a look at the leaders after Day 1 of the year's final major. WARREN LITTLE/GETTY IMAGES

MLS

Donovan to hang up his cleats

Landon Donovan says he will retire from professional soccer at the end of the MLS season.

The LA Galaxy forward is widely considered the best soccer player in American history. The 32-year-old Donovan is the top goal-scorer in MLS history and a five-time league champion.

Donovan agreed to a multi-year contract extension with the Galaxy just a year ago, pronouncing himself revitalized after an extended sabbatical. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

IT'S FAST, SIMPLE AND EASY.
"Thanks very much for handling the sale of my Odyssey van. It was my first experience dealing with ADESA Winnipeg and the information provided and the speed with which my sale was handled were both a pleasant surprise. Having the vehicle picked up was a big help and the fact that it was sold almost immediately for an amount in excess of our asking price was very satisfying.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
You are a rebel by nature and with the Sun linked to Uranus, planet of upheavals, this weekend you will do something outrageous. It may not do much for your rep but you'll have fun.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
It may seem as if the odds are stacked against you but the planets suggest you can easily break through any obstacles that have been placed in your path. Let everyone know you mean business.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You get a kick out of being different and will upset those you consider to be too conservative in their thinking. But when you dish it out you have to be ready to take.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
A craving of some sort will reach a peak and if you want peace of mind you will have to acknowledge your desires and do what you can to satisfy them. It's really no big deal — everyone needs something to make them feel good.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You will meet some interesting people this weekend, the kind of people who look at the world from a different perspective. To you they may look a bit way out, even mad, but maybe from their point of view you look the same!

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You may not be the most adventurous member of the zodiac but you the Sun's link to Uranus, planet of surprises, will inspire you to move out of your comfort zone.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
There is no point discussing what you want to do with family and friends because they are sure to try to make you change your mind. You should be confident enough to move ahead on your own initiative. Do what feels right to you.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Some of the best partnerships are between people who appear to have little in common, so don't turn down an invitation just because it's from someone you find weird.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
There is no need to be cautious. There is no need to hold back. On the contrary, this is the perfect time to take chances and make changes. There may be occasions when you push your luck too far but no harm will come of it.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Usually you are careful with what you say but over the next 48 hours you will go right the other way and say exactly what you think and feel. Others will find your frankness refreshing.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Upheavals are to be expected but they won't be too bad. They may even turn out to be good if you stay sharp and look for ways to take advantage of them. With change comes opportunity.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
A wonderful idea will occur to you and you won't be satisfied until you have done something with it. Don't worry that it does not seem "logical" because you have more than five senses. Do what your inner voice tells you.

You deserve credit from someone who's credible.
